

Otis the pig needs a home

While he was not found wandering Mayberry and quickly taken in to custody by Andy, he was found wandering around Pine Ridge and quickly taken in to custody by deputies and animal control.

The Lexington County Sheriff's Office posted this to Facebook Monday afternoon in a fun way to lighten up our day.

Otis was just trying to gain the affection of a local lady piggy, but his attempts at courting were not well received.

Once in custody, Otis stayed the night at the sheriff's department and promptly checked himself out the next morning. He went for a leisurely stroll around Gibson Road. Otis then returned to the jail and checked himself back in.

No one has come to post his bail, so he needs help finding a new place to roam.

Who reads the Chronicle

As Savannah River Watch director and a close observer of SC utilities and their rates, Tom Clements turns to the Lexington County Chronicle for the latest, fair and accurate news.

"Reporting by the Chronicle on important decisions of our electricity utilities is unparalleled," he said.

"By dogged reporting on the nuclear reactor construction debacle of SCANA & Dominion, readers can see that their interests are always of paramount importance.

"A tip of the hat to the Chronicle and editor Jerry Bellune for outstanding coverage!"
