Dear Honorable Judge Lewis and Honorable Judge Hayes:

I hope this letter finds you well and enjoying your day. I am writing to you on behalf of Kevin Marsh in the hope that I can convey to you some traits of Mr. Marsh that may not have surfaced during the proceedings thus far.

I came to know about Kevin in my capacity as the President and Chief Executive Officer of Epworth Children's Home in South Carolina. Epworth is a state-wide child and family service organization established by the South Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church in 1896. Mr. Marsh was recommended as a potential board member by one of his former pastors. His former pastor informed me that Mr. Marsh was very community minded and was engaged in community improvement.

Mr. Marsh became a member of the Epworth Children's Home Board of Trustees in 2008 and served with distinction for the eight years he was eligible to serve. He regularly attended meetings and was very engaged in Epworth's work to expand its services to individuals and families in South Carolina who live in less-than-ideal circumstances.

What I learned as I came to know Kevin is that underneath the accountant's exterior lives a person who is caring, kind, and generous. I was a bit apprehensive as Mr. Marsh began his tenure on Epworth's board that he might display the large company CEO personality of attempting to take over the board. He did not. He was a great team player. He asked good questions and brought positive energy and excellent insights to our meetings and work.

Mr. Marsh also gave generously to our mission of helping neglected and abused children. He always did this anonymously. He gave from his heart, not from a need to be seen in a certain light. Each year he would make a significant gift that would impact the children at Epworth directly in a significant way.

Once at a board meeting, I mentioned a children's home in Houston, Texas that I had been reading about that offered a program that I thought could be beneficial to the children Epworth serves. Kevin, after the meeting said to me that if I ever want to look at the home in Houston, he would like to go along, because it sounded promising. Later that year, Kevin, our Chief Program Officer, and I spent two days in Houston examining the Boys and Girls Country Home. Mr. Marsh paid for all the expenses.

It is when you travel with others that you often see the person(s) in a more in-depth way than in ordinary circumstances. I saw Kevin as a kind and courteous individual who cares deeply about his family, and his community, and as a person who is willing to engage in not so glamorous work in order to assist others who are in need.

I thank you for taking the time to read this letter. If I can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

John E. Holler
